

A Crash Course In Geoengineering

By Nick Rogers

"He who controls the weather will control the world."

Geoengineering programs of one form or another have been going on for decades. Also referred to as "climate engineering" or "weather modification," only a fraction of this atmospheric science has been publicly disclosed. "Cloud seeding" is the prevalent example, involving the injection of silver iodide from planes for the purpose of artificially inducing rainfall over a desired area. Patents and documentation exist for both the openly acknowledged technologies like cloud seeding and the officially denied, covert programs I will discuss in more detail (some of which go far beyond the manipulation of weather).

"Chemtrails" and "Conspiracy Theory"

"Chemtrails" is a term widely circulated by mainstream media and government entities, and it is deliberately linked to "conspiracy theory." For context, the terms "conspiracy theory" and "conspiracy theorist" were born out of a 1967 CIA (Central Intelligence Agency) memorandum, Document Number 1035-960, concerned with combating the growing belief – one supposedly held by 46% of the population at the time – that Lee Harvey Oswald did not act alone in JFK's murder [Fig. 1]. As the document states, "The aim of this dispatch is to provide material for countering and discrediting the claims of conspiracy theorists," and "To employ propaganda assets to answer and refute the attacks of the critics." Whether they knew it or not at the time, the CIA had successfully unleashed one of the most powerful stigmatic phrases ever to be utilized by the power structure.

Today, anyone who questions the official government narrative of suspicious world events or covert programs – even if there is substantial evidence to back up the claims – is dubbed a conspiracy theorist, and usually that ends the debate. Author and psychologist Peter Janney (whose father, Frederick Janney, was a high-ranking CIA executive) says, "...the concept of 'conspiracy theorist' was engendered and infused into our political lexicon and became what it is today: a term to smear, denounce, ridicule, and defame anyone who dares to speak about any crime committed by the state, military or intelligence services. People who want to pretend that conspiracies don't exist – when in fact they are among the most common modus operandi of significant historical change throughout the world and in our country – become furious when their naïve illusion is challenged."

ACTION REQUIRED - REFERENCES: PAUL H. FOR OSWALD PSYCH FILE 1-2 COPIES THIS WAS PULLED TOGETHER BY NED BENEFIT OF CA STAFF IN CLOSE COOPERATION WITH CIA. THE FOLLOWING IS A SUMMARY OF THE SOURCE MATERIAL, PAUL H. FOR OSWALD, AND PROVIDED GENERAL "EXPERTISE" ON THE CASE. THE SUMMARY ARTICLE WAS WRITTEN BY BENEFIT. 1. Our Concern. From the day of President Kennedy's assassination on, there has been speculation about the responsibility for his murder. Although this was stemmed for a time by the Warren Commission report (which appeared at the end of September 1964), various writers have now had time to scan the Commission's published report and documents for new pretexts for questioning, and there has been a new wave of books and articles criticizing the Commission's findings. In most cases the critics have speculated as to the existence of some kind of conspiracy, and often they have implied that the Commission itself was involved. Presumably as a result of the increasing challenge to the Warren Commission's Report, a public opinion poll recently indicated that 46% of the American public did not think that Oswald acted alone, while more than half of those polled thought that the Commission had left some questions unresolved. Doubtless polls abroad would show similar, or possibly more adverse, results. 2. This trend of opinion is a matter of concern to the U.S. government, including our organization. The members of the Warren Commission were naturally chosen for their integrity, experience, and prominence. They represented both major parties, and they and their staff were deliberately drawn from all sections of the country. Just because of the standing of the Commissioners, efforts to impugn their rectitude and wisdom tend to cast doubt on the whole leadership of American society. Moreover, there seems to be an increasing tendency to hint that President Johnson himself, as the one person who might be said to have benefited, was in some way responsible for the assassination. Innuendo of such seriousness affects not only the individual concerned, but also the whole reputation of the American government. Our organization itself is directly involved: among other facts, we contributed information to the investigation. Conspiracy theories have frequently thrown suspicion on our organization, for example by falsely alleging that Lee Harvey Oswald worked for us. The aim of this dispatch is to provide material for countering and discrediting the claims of the conspiracy theorists, so as to inhibit the circulation of such claims in other countries. Background information is supplied in a classified section and in a number of unclassified attachments. 3. Action. We do not recommend that discussion of the assassination question be initiated where it is not already taking place. Where discussion is active, however, addressees are requested:

From JFK's assassination to 9/11, the media and government propaganda formula has remained the same, and the addition of "chemtrails" to the "conspiracy theory" lexicon is no different. Although first appearing in a 1990 US Air Force Academy chemistry manual [Fig. 2], the term "chemtrails" has now been weaponized by the power structure to ridicule and discredit those who are aware of the clandestine geoengineering programs. Despite this official disinformation, anti-geoengineering activists I admire continue to use the term "chemtrails."

An Archive.org PDF of the entire manual exists online, but the link does not work while embedded in this document. I found the manual by doing a Google search for "u.s. air force chemistry 131 manual 1990." Hard copies of the manual are also available for sale online.

The 1996 US Air Force document Weather as a Force Multiplier: Owning the Weather in 2025 [Fig. 3] delves deeply into the military's climate engineering agenda. The document states, "In the broadest sense, weather-modification can be divided into two major categories: suppression and intensification of weather patterns, attenuation or control of severe storms, or even alteration of global climate on a far-reaching and/or long-lasting scale." The document goes on to say, "In 2025, US aerospace can 'own the weather' by capitalizing on emerging technologies and focusing development of those technologies to war-fighting applications." And yet, despite 24 years of opportunity to fine-tune their fairly overt objectives of controlling every aspect of the Earth and its atmosphere through "Artificial Weather" and the "Exploitation of 'NearSpace' for Space Control," the Pentagon still discusses these programs as solely theoretical. Are we supposed to believe these programs won't be operational until 2025?

Contrary to what military, science, and health agencies claim, jet aircraft chemical spraying (in conjunction with ionosphere heating) has been going on for over 20 years under the initial code name “Project Cloverleaf,” and it includes agendas that have nothing to do with mitigating climate change. The Disinformation War

- “Chemtrails” vs. “Contrails”

There is no disputing the existence of condensation trails (“contrails”) left by jet aircraft and, since the end of World War II, they have frequently occurred in skies across the planet. The term “chemtrails” by its very nature is not only meant (from a power structure standpoint) to ridicule and discredit “conspiracy theorists,” but it is also meant to confuse inquisitive minds researching this topic for the first time. The mainstream disinformation blitz on this subject has been monumental. Major players in the propagation of lies include the CIA, NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration), NOAA (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration), the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency), the CDC (Centers for Disease Control), the FAA (Federal Aviation Administration), the CFR (Council on Foreign Relations), NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization), Raytheon, and the IPCC (United Nation’s Intergovernmental Panel On Climate Change), along with well-funded geoengineers David Keith (Harvard University) and Ken Caldeira (Stanford University). Pentagon-linked corporations such as Google and YouTube are heavily involved in the deception as well. You may have noticed misleading Wikipedia and Encyclopedia Britannica banners appearing below many videos on YouTube dealing with this subject matter. These banners were not placed there by the video creators [Fig. 4].

Contrail

Contrail, also called condensation trail or vapour trail, streamer of cloud sometimes observed behind an airplane flying in clear cold humid air. It forms upon condensation of water vapour produced by the combustion of fuel in airplane engines. When the ambient relative humidity is high, the resulting ice-crystal plume may last several hours. The trail may be distorted by the winds, and sometimes it spreads outward to form a layer of cirrus cloud. On rare occasions, when the air is nearly saturated with water vapour, air circulation at the wing tips of an airplane may cause...

Military-linked power structure entities would have us believe that every thick white streak coming from the back of an airplane or jet is a contrail. The term they've come up with now is "persistent contrail," given that the aerosol streaks often remain visible for hours at a time, spreading out and joining other streaks to blanket the sky with a metallic, off-white haze.

Metabunk.org, Snopes.com, and a legion of other government shills provide daily online deception in the form of blogs, articles, and comment thread infiltration in an attempt to squelch any truthful discussion about the spraying. NASA even created a "S'COOL Cloud Identification Chart" [Fig. 5] for elementary schools, replete with an illustration of a plane "creating contrails" (at least three of the photographs shown at the top of the chart feature aerosol spray-caused "cloud cover").

Adding to the "normalcy bias" most people have towards aerosol "clouds" – a phenomenon that is anything but normal – movies and television constantly flash chemically smeared sky images before our eyes.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Normalcy_bias

Okay, so let's talk about condensation. The following is a dictionary-provided definition:

The conversion of a vapor or gas to a liquid.

Synonyms: precipitation, liquification, deliquescence; distillation.

"the condensation of water vapor."

I can confidently say that all of us have "seen our breath" on a cold day outside. This is condensation. I can also say, just as confidently, that none of us have ever walked down the street on a cold day and turned around to see that our breath's condensation has visibly persisted for blocks and blocks. In the case of a contrail, water vapor in the jet exhaust combines with the cold ambient air to create ice crystals that evaporate relatively quickly and evenly behind the moving plane.

Clifford Carnicom – an independent scientist and resident of New Mexico's high desert for many years – discusses the contrail phenomenon as it relates to his locale: "It is, in fact, a classic region for conventional contrail formation. Contrails themselves can and do form easily in a low-humidity environment. In the past, the passing of a short-lived contrail in the high, clear, desert sky was an innocuous and frequent occurrence." Most clouds, he says, "...occur in the middle of the troposphere, being the lower portion of our atmosphere up to an altitude of approximately seven miles or so." Cloud formation – as opposed to contrail formation – requires a "...minimum level of humidity. From numerous sources, this minimum is on the order of 70% relative humidity."

Carnicom, a former employee of the DoD (Department of Defense), even calculated a "Contrail Formation Model" formula. Interestingly, when he applied this model to real-world conditions, his observations showed that most aerosol spraying operations in his area took place during the highest times of atmospheric humidity. This, presumably, allowed the aerosolized "cloud cover" the best chance to spread and merge together.

<https://www.transitiweb.nl/mirror-carnicom-institute/tag/contrail/index.html>

Parenthetically, many planes have been seen and videotaped with persistent trails behind them that stop and start instantaneously.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=l_9XPSrRIFM

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=iK9nVR9H34g&list=PL_WKlaR99nti_b7v9kAMxUoB

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ELOFgQ2nCEY>

This pattern simply cannot happen with an actual water vapor contrail. Interrupted "contrails" are the result of particulate dispersion systems being turned on and off, often near the beginning or end of their payloads (according to a source of mine in the military). This same source informed me that "clear" chemtrails have now been deployed; that is, short, bright bursts of aerosolized chemicals sprayed from a plane that appear, from the ground, to behave the same way as normal contrails, furthering public confusion.

Elana Freeland, in her book Chemtrails, HAARP, and the Full Spectrum Dominance of Planet Earth, says, "From the ground, we are accustomed to observing contrails in jets' wake. The possibility that the government and its media have not seen fit to tell us that we might be looking at something different should not surprise us. A contrail typically forms one wingspan behind the aircraft (the US Air Force distance standard), but photographic and video evidence consistently indicates that a very different aerosol trail – chemtrail, persistent contrail – forms nearer the engines."

Peter Kirby, in his book Chemtrails Exposed: The New Manhattan Project, says that US Air Force tankers constitute a large part of the spraying operations. Kirby states, "Some chemtrail fleet planes have been expertly identified as retrofitted jumbo jets. Allan Buckmann is a former US Air Force weather observer who worked on the Tiros III weather satellite system with NASA, RCA, and the US Navy. In a 2012 ActivistPost.com article he wrote that he has repeatedly witnessed Boeing KC-135s, Boeing 707s and Lockheed C-141s spraying chemtrails."

Kirby adds, "These three models of aircraft mentioned here are what are known as 'tanker' jets. They are referred to this way due to their sizable fuselages which provide a large cargo carrying capacity...If one is to assemble a giant fleet of refurbished supertanker aircraft such as these, one needs a source of mothballed planes." He goes on to discuss Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in Tucson, Arizona – the "Aircraft Boneyard" – the largest repository of aircraft in the world, and likely the primary location of jet tanker refurbishment and "chemtrail fleet" modification.

<http://www.znakovi-vremena.net/chemtrails/>

As you might imagine, pilots flying these planes face an ethical dilemma, and they are an extreme liability to those in charge of these programs as they constitute potential whistleblowers.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=IZaD-H_j3pU&feature=emb_logo

This is where drones, or UAVs (Unmanned Aerial Vehicles) come in. In addition to the fallibility of human beings, Freeland and Kirby discuss another key problem that drones eliminate, that of the need to land and refuel. Freeland cites the abstract of the 1991 US patent 5068669A, "Power Beaming System": "Airborne craft powered by microwave beams from the earth's surface will never run out of fuel...unburdened by the crushing weight of fuel, such aircraft would be able to lift vast payloads into the upper atmosphere." Authors Nick Begich and Jeane Manning reference an Aviation Week article about the patent's capabilities: "The aircraft was reported to be able to stay aloft for up to 10,000 hours at 80,000-foot altitudes in a single mission." Other patents for this technology include US patent 3464207A, "Quasi-Corona-Aerodynamic Vehicle," US patent 4955562A, "Microwave Powered Aircraft," US Navy patent 6364253B1, "Remote Piloted Vehicle Powered by Beam Radiation," among others.

But, if you think retrofitted military tankers are the only source of these toxic emissions, think again. Freeland explains how, under the "black budget" Project Cloverleaf, commercial airliners were incorporated into the fray. She quotes freelance journalist

Jim Stone as saying, "...they [chemtrail ingredients] have been mandated as a fuel additive and now all jet aircraft deliver them whether they want to or not."

Carnicom posted a detailed email sent to him from an anonymous airline manager regarding how government officials informed him that they were "...going to pay our airline, along with others, to release special chemicals from commercial aircraft. When asked what the chemicals were and why we were going to spray them, they told us the information was given on a need-to-know basis and we weren't cleared for it."

<https://www.transitiweb.nl/mirror-carnicom-institute/tag/airline/index.html>

Official sources such as the FAA would have us believe that commercial airliners exclusively use Jet-A fuel, combustion of which (they say) is relatively safe to breath. The problem with this claim is that aluminum is corrosive to engines and, if commercial planes are indeed part of the spraying operations, they would need an anti-corrosive agent added to the fuel. This is where JP-8 comes in. JP-8, described by the military as a "universal battlefield fuel," contains tungsten, a "corrosion inhibitor." In Chemtrails Confirmed, William Thomas quotes an anonymous member of the International Citizens Activist Network as saying, "Tungsten is used to harden turbine blades in jet engines." Tungsten has been linked to clusters of childhood leukemia in numerous US cities, including Fallon, Nevada (located near a US Naval Air base).

Thomas explains, "The low-volatility of JP-8 means it lingers longer on skin and clothing...Ground crews complain of smelling and tasting JP-8 for many hours after exposure. Headaches, dizziness, and light-headedness are common side effects, along with respiratory and skin irritations. And apparently, cancer." The anonymous activist adds, "At least three laboratory studies have linked the fuel to DNA damage...the Pentagon has even commissioned studies to determine whether JP-8 exposure contributed to Gulf War syndrome."

• "Global Warming" and "Climate Change" as a Cover Story

"Global Warming" and "Climate Change" are arguably the two most polarizing terms in our lexicon today (this is not by accident). You either believe in the phenomenon or you don't, right? Black and white are the choices presented to us. If you do believe in global warming/climate change, your government and local community likely compartmentalize you as a "liberal," and you likely consider yourself one. If you don't, you're likely identified as a "conservative;" that is, a "denier." We are taught, from a very early age, to see things dichotomously. Grey areas are slippery slopes to be avoided.

The declassified-yet-heavily-redacted 1960 CIA memorandum with the subject heading “Climate Control” is the first government-tied document of which I’m aware that discusses the overt manipulation of the Earth’s climate system. The document was prepared by Thomas F. Malone [Fig. 6], then chief researcher for Traveler’s Insurance, the most influential insurance corporation concerned with financially incentivizing weather manipulation. In the CIA memorandum, Malone discusses both the financial and the military benefits of purposefully altering the climate. Later on, Malone helped establish the IPCC and was an early proponent of the narrative of greenhouse-gas-caused global warming/climate change.

In 1965, climate fear mongering ramped up. Lyndon Johnson's Science Advisory Committee's Environmental Pollution Panel came out with a report titled Restoring the Quality of Our Environment. The report focused heavily on the danger of too much CO₂ in our atmosphere, and it advocated for the dispersal of tiny reflective particles to cool the planet. To read the report:

<https://babel.hathitrust.org/cgi/pt?id=uc1.b4116127&view=1up&seq=7>

In 1966, the NSF (National Science Foundation), in their eighth annual Weather Modification Report [Fig. 7], said that a technique for combating this global warming/climate change could be the production of "...high-level cirrus cloud cover over an area by means of jet aircraft, inserting particulate matter into the upper atmosphere to alter the solar radiation balance and the like." To find the report, Google search the above quote.

NASA issued a similar report that same year:

<https://ntrs.nasa.gov/archive/nasa/casi.ntrs.nasa.gov/19680002906.pdf>

A 1974 CIA report titled A Study of Climatological Research as it Pertains to Intelligence Problems bolstered the urgency for dealing with dangerous fluctuations in the weather brought about by a changing climate. The paper states, “The new climatic era brings a promise of famine and starvation to many areas of the world.” To read the report:

https://www.governmentattic.org/18docs/CIAclimateResearchIntellProbs_1974.pdf

This “...promise of famine and starvation...” curiously presaged former CIA Director John Brennan’s remarks in 2016 about SAI and SRM (Stratospheric Aerosol Injection and Solar Radiation Management) in his speech to the CFR [Fig. 8]: “On the geopolitical side, the technology’s potential to alter weather patterns, and benefit certain regions of the world at the expense of other regions, could trigger sharp opposition from some nations.”

To read a full transcript of the speech:

Alex Constantine, author of Virtual Government: CIA Mind Control Operations in America, states, “The cost of disinforming the world cost American taxpayers an estimated $265 million a year by 1978, a budget larger than the combined expenditures of Reuters, UPI, and the AP news syndicates.” If you are unfamiliar with Operation Mockingbird, please become informed:

<https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKmockingbird.htm>

By the 1980s, the stage was set for the creation of the greatest bogeyman of all time. Since then, the WMO (World Meteorological Organization), EPA, NASA, IPCC, DOE (United States Department of Energy), and, of course, Al Gore, have fervently pushed the narrative that anthropogenic CO₂ is the most prominent cause (if not the only cause) of climate change and global warming. From droughts to deluge, we're told that it's because of our insatiable appetite for fossil-fuel, and the greenhouse gasses they emit, rather than the naturally variable climate or the intentional creation of devastating weather events through deliberate energetic manipulation of Earth's atmosphere.

Is the climate changing? Absolutely. But it's complicated. To quote communications I had with publisher, editor, and researcher Ian Baldwin – co-founder of www.ourgeoengineeringage.org – “Climate is driven by three or four variable – variable or varying – forces: first, and likely foremost, the sun; second, the Earth itself, showing up in deep sea volcanism (about 80% of all volcanic heat release is in the deep oceans); third, Earth's orbit about the sun (perihelion and aphelion), the Earth's rotating tilt or wobble...its change of axis, and other Earth-centric peculiarities; fourth, and I believe least documented, is interstellar radiation as the solar system traverses the galaxy circling the galactic core, as well as some major full reversals of Earth's geomagnetic field, which may be tied to the sun's occasional vast bursts of energy (see Robert Felix's Not by Fire but by Ice).”

“Global Warming” and “Climate Change” are such effective terms of propaganda because there is, unfortunately, some truth wrapped up in the package. Tropospheric aerosol spray is creating a “net-net” heating effect (“Global Warming”) and, on top of that, it has derailed the hydrological cycle. Add to this the concomitant phased-array microwave creation of mega-storm systems, droughts, earthquakes, and other cataclysms, and what you're left with is a planet completely out of energetic balance (“Climate Change”).

Dane Wigington explains how droughts, winter storms, and hurricanes are created through microwave manipulation of sprayed aerosolized particulates.

<https://www.geoengineeringwatch.org/category/storms/>

Along those same lines, geoengineers have perfected a process called Chemical Ice Nucleation; US patent 3613992A. Through the use of surfactants and other chemicals sprayed into clouds, precipitation that would otherwise fall as rain changes into (toxic) snow in an endothermic reaction. Hence, as Wigington says, the geoengineers can create an endless parade of theatrically named winter storms (even at above-freezing temperatures) to further fuel public debate as to whether or not “global warming” exists at all.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=D1k3za86sTo>

To view an extensive list of other weather modification-related patents:

<http://www.chemtrailplanet.com/Patents.htm>

In Chemtrails, HAARP, and the Full Spectrum Dominance of Planet Earth, Freeland sites Veterans Today columnist Trowbridge Ford’s statement about how, in 2005, a “shot of energy quickly turned the Category 1 [hurricane] into a category 5 [Hurricane Katrina] with water leading the wind instead of vice versa, waves at 60 feet, and coastal water temperature at 90°F (32°C).”

Freeland also sites George Ure’s astute analysis of highly anomalous localized ionospheric heating caused by HAARP (run by the US Air Force via DARPA, the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency), aligning perfectly with the many earthquakes on and around the day of the Fukushima nuclear meltdown. Ure says, “I plotted out the times of the Japan quake plus a few other quakes (6.0 and above) that were temporally adjacent, and put a few of them of the magnetometer timeline from HAARP’s database and there’s a big spiky thing around 07:00=08:00 UTC on March 10. Guess what’s there? A 4.8 off Honshu...That’s the big black spike which is followed by the next big black spike smack dab coincident with the 9.09 quake!”

Even MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) admits to extraordinarily unusual ionospheric heating above the epicenter of the Fukushima quake but, not surprisingly, they say, “...good data is hard to come by.”

Freeland says about the 2000s, “Then began a heavy push of chemtrails-HAARP experiments. Practice runs occurred in war theatres and throughout the skies of NATO members, many of which were carried out over the US...Next began a period of seemingly scheduled earthquakes, hurricanes, tornadoes..." She quotes an anonymous observer who says, "...has anyone noticed that almost every other year there is a new weather crisis that stays focused merely on that particular phenomenon?" The observer points out how 2004 was the year of tsunamis. 2005, hurricanes. 2007, floods. 2008, tornadoes. 2009 and 2010, earthquakes.

"Chemtrails" in Congress

While the United States was still reeling from the attacks of September 11, 2001, in October of that year Ohio Rep. Dennis Kucinich [Fig.9] introduced House of Representatives bill HR2977 (the "Space Preservation Act") [Fig. 10]. It called for the peaceful use of space, and a ban on "exotic weapons" ("chemtrails" is listed as an exotic weapon). HAARP is described in the same section (though the specific acronym was removed, according to Kucinich) as "...weapons designed to damage space or natural ecosystems (such as the ionosphere or upper atmosphere) or climate, weather, and tectonic systems with the purpose of inducing damage or destruction upon a target population or region on Earth or in space."

To view the DoD's "Joint Vision 2020: America's Military – Preparing For Tomorrow":

Parenthetically, a 1976 UN (United Nations) treaty known as ENMOD (for "environmental modification") prohibited "...hostile use of environmental modification techniques," though it has done nothing to stop any of these programs. To view the treaty:

What are they spraying?

What, then, are the long white streaks, clearly visible from the ground, often stretching from horizon-to-horizon, often sprayed parallel to one another or in a grid pattern, often persisting for hours at a time, often not on commercial flight paths, that billow out of jet aircraft daily across the world? As hard as it may be to believe, most of what you are seeing coming out of these planes is aerosolized metallic nanoparticles – aluminum, barium, strontium, manganese, gallium, and other elements – sprayed for the purpose of weather modification and other deep state agendas. Upper atmosphere-disrupting chemicals have also been released such as NASA's lithium/tri-methyl aluminum/barium "tracer" sounding rockets:

https://www.nasa.gov/mission_pages/sounding-rockets/tracers/metals.html

In addition, multiple high-altitude nuclear bomb detonations have been carried out by the United States and Soviet militaries dating back to 1958 (see Ian Baldwin's "The Sorcerer's Apprentices at Play at the Dawn of the Geoengineering Age"):

<https://vermontindependent.net/the-sorcerers-apprentices-at-play-at-the-dawn-of-the-geoengineering-age/>

To view a list and description of these "experiments":

<https://www.spacelegalissues.com/space-law-starfish-prime-or-the-legality-of-high-altitude-geoengineering/>

But, for the purposes of this paper, I will focus on the afore-mentioned aerosolized metals being sprayed by jets in our troposphere (the lowest part of our atmosphere where the air we breathe resides) and stratosphere (the area of atmosphere above the troposphere), with the disingenuously stated purpose of reflecting sunlight back to space to mitigate global warming. This is exactly what David Keith, Ken Caldeira, John Holdren, the CFR, the UN, MIT, Harvard University, Jane C. S. Long (Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory), Bill Gates, the IPCC, RAND Corporation, and many others have strongly advocated for many years (I will discuss the actual motives later). This is also what witnesses by the thousands have reported seeing since the late 1990s. You too can see this on most days simply by looking up. Don't call the EPA, though, if you're interested in test results that reveal the level of heavy metal nanoparticle concentration in our breathable air column. The EPA has admitted it does not test for nanosized particles in the air (you can't find what you're not looking for or don't want to find, right?). They stopped officially testing for aluminum in soil back in 2003 and, while they do provide water quality recommendations, no online test results exist to my knowledge.

To download and view non-power-structure-funded rainwater/snow/soil lab tests – samples of which were submitted by citizens across seven states (Australia and Italy as well) – that reveal extremely high levels of aluminum, barium, and strontium:

<https://www.geoengineeringwatch.org/water-tests/>

For context, the CDC states that soil and water levels "...generally do not exceed .1µg/L" ("µg," or "mcg," stands for "micrograms"):

The 1990 Hughes Aircraft Company registered patent US5003186A, "Stratospheric Welsbach Seeding for Reduction of Global Warming" (now owned by Raytheon), calls for the production and dispersion, via aircraft, of 8-to-12 micron-sized (nanoparticle) reflective metals.

<https://patents.google.com/patent/US5003186A/en>

There is, of course, no discussion in the patent of the human or environmental effects of dispersing megatons of chemicals known to be neurologically toxic to humans and other life forms. Dane Wigington confronted well-known geoengineer David Keith [Fig. 11] at the 2010 AAAS (American Association for the Advancement of Science) conference, asking him if any studies had yet been done on the effects of "proposed" geoengineering chemical dispersion. He asked Keith, "So, 10 megatons of aluminum dumped into the atmosphere would have no human health impacts?" Keith responded, "Alumina we've only begun to research, and published nothing. We haven't done anything serious on alumina and so there could be something terrible that we find tomorrow we haven't looked at."

https://www.youtube.com/watch?time_continue=3&v=5qEBZAE0rbs&feature=emb_logo

Later on, at the same conference, Keith proclaimed, "And by the way, it's not really a moral hazard. It's more like free-riding on our grandkids."

Chemtrails Confirmed chronicles author and investigator William Thomas' travels throughout North America and his interviews with citizens of all kinds, from landscapers to FAA employees. The book documents first-hand accounts of aerosol spray sightings, reviews subsequent rainwater lab tests (1999 aluminum levels from Espanola, Ontario rain were found to be 7x the federal safety limit), and quotes numerous citizens as they describe how they and their loved ones were sickened by aerial spraying. Thomas mentions that Espanola residents presented a petition to Canadian Parliament, signed by 550 locals, in which they "...demanded an explanation and an end to aerial spraying by photo-identified US Air Force tankers, which they claimed was sickening children and adults over a 55 square mile area." US Air Force officials, not surprisingly, denied involvement. The Canadian Forces responded to the irate citizens, simply stating, "It's not us."

<http://www.holmestead.ca/chemtrails/soilradar.html>

Thomas also delves into the bizarre 1994 occurrences of gelatinous blobs raining down on the town of Oakville, Washington three different times over a six-week period. Many animals died, and dozens of residents fell ill. Samples of the substance revealed human white blood cells and two different kinds of bacteria. Like Espanola, residents complained of intense military spraying operations in the days and hours prior. In the case of Oakville, it was the US Navy who denied any wrongdoing. To this day, residents are doubtful to say the least.

<https://rense.com/ufo/flubber.htm>

Thomas, whose earlier book Bringing the War Home documents the more-than 200,000 Desert Storm Veterans suffering "Gulf War Illness," identifies pathogenic mycoplasma bacteria as the cause. A modified version – known as Mycoplasma Fermentans – was patented in 1993 by Dr. Shyh-Ching Lo of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology. Mycoplasma – one-tenth the size of a normal bacterium – was "accidentally" transmitted to soldiers through "attenuated" anthrax shots during the Gulf War. The stealthy pathogen has been linked to pneumonia, chronic fatigue, respiratory distress, and lupus, respectively; the exact same symptoms found in bunches across the United States in the early 2000s after spraying operations. While most patients were treated symptomatically (with no cultures taken) and diagnosed as having the flu (despite many having no fever), those who chose to have a live blood microscopy performed were found to be infected not with a virus, but with mycoplasma.

So, as you can see, weather modification through the dispersion of heavy metal aerosolized nanoparticulates is but one of the geoengineering agendas, and I will expand on the others in the "Motives" section of this paper.

A skeptical friend asked me, “So where do they get all the chemicals to spray non-stop?” I believe geoscientist J Marvin Herndon has the answer. Herndon has published many peer-reviewed science articles showing that one of the world’s most abundant industrial toxic waste products, coal fly ash, is the most likely source of the chemical elements found in post-spray rainwater tests worldwide. Aluminum, barium, and strontium are the most common toxins found in these tests.

Coal fly ash is readily available, and it exists in the proper size range for aerosol spraying. Furthermore, as Herndon points out, it can be separated into even finer sizes using cyclone classifiers (separators). In addition to the afore-mentioned trio of aluminum, barium, and strontium – what Herndon calls the “fingerprints” of geoengineering aerosol spraying operations – coal fly ash also releases arsenic, hexavalent chromium, and radioactive elements such as uranium and thorium. This disastrous slew of toxins is “leached” from coal fly ash when it comes in contact with water – either in the air, on the ground, or in our bodies – making the chemicals mobile and consumable by all terrestrial and aquatic life.

Motives

Why would the powers that be subject whole populations (including themselves) to the hazards imposed by toxic chemical spraying? Well, the motives are complex and they are many. Here is a summary:

- Catastrophe Reinsurance and Weather Derivatives

These are multi-$billion financial markets that rely on super-computer-driven “climate models” produced by Raytheon, Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, NORAD (North American Aerospace Defense Command), MIT, NWS (National Weather Service), NOAA, NASA, MITRE Corporation, and others. Players in these markets are classified as “disaster capitalists.” The worse a “natural” disaster is – for example crop failures or energy production shortages – the more money they make. Being able to “predict” what weather calamities will happen, when they will happen, where they will happen, and how severe they will be, allows for catastrophe reinsurance and weather derivatives markets to thrive.

- Weather Warfare

It is well documented that during the Viet Nam War the Pentagon authorized the intentional flooding of the Ho-Chi-Min trail through the creation and augmentation of storms to destroy enemy supply roads. First denied by the DoD, "Operation Popeye" was declassified thanks to the Pentagon Papers. Although the results were devastating, cloud seeding operations of that time were primitive compared to what the military-industrial-intelligence-university complex is able to manifest now. Hurricanes, earthquakes, and other large-scale disasters can be created on-demand through the utilization of ionosphere heaters like HAARP and the Arecibo "Observatory" in Puerto Rico. The intricacies and capabilities of ionosphere heaters is best described in Begich and Manning's book Angels Don't Play This HAARP and Freeland's book Chemtrails, HAARP, and the Full Spectrum Dominance of Planet Earth.

If you're familiar with the history of the CIA and its never-ending, large-scale, accountability-free, mafia-like behavior (from drug-trafficking to assassinations to regime change), and if you're familiar with how often the agency has publicly lied about its clandestine operations, only to later disclose small bits of redacted truth (usually begrudgingly through Freedom of Information Act requests), then you probably share my disinclination to believe the agency when it speaks of something like geoengineering (or weather warfare for that matter) as merely "theoretical."

For a detailed history of the CIA's involvement in weather warfare via weather modification:

<https://climateviewer.com/2018/05/24/henry-kissinger-the-cia-and-weather-warfare/>

- C5ISR (formerly known as C4)

"Command, Control, Communications, Computers, Combat, Intelligence, Surveillance, and Reconnaissance," or what military brass calls "Full spectrum dominance," is denoted by C5ISR. In order for the military to effectively deploy over-the-horizon radar, LIDAR (Light Detection and Ranging), DEW (Directed Energy Weapons), voice-to-skull technology, holograms, "Active Denial" crowd control, plasma weaponry, jet stream manipulation, and much more, the atmosphere must be continuously saturated with electrically-conductive metallic particles (and these technologies have to either be hidden from the public or, like so many other breaches of civil liberties, they must be presented as conveniences and/or tools for keeping us safe). Freeland lays out the details of why the military needs a permanently ionized atmosphere to accomplish the above wireless operations in her book Under an Ionized Sky: From Chemtrails to Space Fence Lockdown. She says, "Weather engineering is key to all other electromagnetic military operations. Not only is high-frequency 'sky beam' technology daily adjusting the temperature-dependent conductivity of the lower atmosphere by heating portions of the ionosphere, but it has been weaponized for the military doctrine of full spectrum dominance via C4...dependent on (1) a conductive lower atmosphere, and (2) space and ground-based systems that assure 24/7 conductivity."

Not only are conductive particles floating around in the troposphere and lower stratosphere 24/7, but they are falling down to Earth and entering our bodies. Yes, we are now extremely electrically conductive microwave receivers, and much of the metal we breathe in (also laid out in Freeland's book) is what has come to be known as "smart dust;" essentially, nanobots. Military labs – primarily orchestrated by DARPA – have developed particles up to 50x smaller than a human blood cell; particles that can self-replicate and have processors capable of communicating with each other and with remotely-located super computers. Fast-forward to the 23:22 mark of the following presentation from Freeland:

The following article, appearing on CNN's website January 14, 2020, describes DARPA's newest creation, the "xenobot." The article admits the creature is "...small enough to travel inside human bodies" and that it is "programmable" (emphasis added).

<https://www.cnn.com/2020/01/13/us/living-robot-stem-cells-intl-hnk-scli-scn/index.html>

Xenobots are presented as a benevolent invention to do things such as "...clean up radioactive waste, collect microplastics in the oceans, carry medicine inside human bodies, or even travel into our arteries to scrape out plaque" but, if you're familiar at all with DARPA, you know that their inventions are never created with the betterment of humanity or the planet in mind.

I understand all this sounds like science fiction. It's not. To paraphrase Dane Wigington, don't just believe what I say. Please do your own honest, objective research. Caveat emptor: Google is an arm of DARPA and the NSA. Search wisely.

Lockheed Martin (among others) has developed DEW technology, patent W02016024265A1, described as a “fiber laser” with the stated goal of combating “enemy targets” with pinpoint precision. As activist Deborah Tavares says, “Make no mistake...we are the enemy.” To view the patent:

<https://patents.google.com/patent/WO2016024265A1/en>

To find an example of DEW already deployed against civilians, look no further than the recent California “super wild fires” in which blazes burned at unprecedented temperatures and at unprecedented speeds. The enormity and “out of nowhere” ignition of these fires simultaneously in multiple isolated locations can likely only be explained by the use of DEW.

<http://www.chemtrailplanet.com/DEW.html>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oG9qx7uPYJ0>

The link below discusses Solaren and PG&E (Pacific Gas and Electric)’s suspicious dealings with DEW technology as it pertains to the California fires:

As you can see from the stunning images of these fires and their aftermath, it’s no surprise why many fire fighters say the blazes were like nothing they’d ever experienced [Figs. 12, 13]. Selected buildings and neighborhoods were reduced to nothing but ash while surrounding trees were often left untouched, selected cars literally melted, humans inside cars literally melted, and the speed at which the fires covered remarkable distances was, again, like nothing fire-fighting personnel had ever seen before in their lives.

Greece and Portugal suffered unprecedented fire disasters as well [Figs. 14, 15].

Sadly, brave fire fighters are being sent in to deal with fires whose orchestrated behaviors they do not understand. The incredible heat of these fires (over 1000°F hotter than a normal wild fire in some cases), and incredible speeds at which they move, cannot be explained except for the fact that everything that burned was covered in an extremely volatile dust-like layer of accelerant: aluminum oxide. Not surprisingly, the mainstream media portrays this behavior simply as the side effect of the “new normal” of climate change.

<https://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-6384485/Californias-Camp-Fire-inferno-survivors-rev>

Parenthetically, survivors of the northern California fires reported seeing unusual amounts of aerosol spraying in the days and hours immediately prior to the fires breaking out. For that matter, my wife and I witnessed a massive spraying operation over and around Yosemite National Park during the nearby Ferguson Fire in July of 2018 [Figs. 16, 17].

As of the writing of this paper, I have not come across any evidence that definitively shows the use of DEW in the ongoing Australian fires. That being said, the behavior of the fire itself has been eerily similar to that of the afore-mentioned fires in California, Greece, and Portugal [Figs. 18, 19].

Fire ecologist David Bowman, from the University of Tasmania, says, "You have to ask: Has there ever been a fire event of 1.65 million hectares that's burnt a large area of what is generally considered fire-proof vegetation, and also occurred simultaneously with fires in other regions of Australia and California? What is happening is extraordinary." The question he poses is right on the money, but the rest of his statement is predictably misleading: "It would be difficult to say there wasn't a climate change dimension."

For some reason I am unable to hyperlink the Sciencemag.org article where I found the quote above. You can locate it by searching "massive australian blazes will reframe our understanding of bushfire."

For those who have sincerely and objectively looked into the numerous scientific anomalies of the 9/11 attacks – specifically the destruction of the World Trade Center buildings and the resulting molten iron that smoldered for weeks at ground zero (left out of the official 9/11 Commission Report) – then you are no doubt familiar with the discovery of unreacted spheres of thermite in the rubble and the subsequent paper written by Professor Steven Jones of Brigham Young University (Jones was placed on administrative leave after the paper was published). Thermite (in this case "super-thermite" or nano-thermite) is a military-grade mixture of aluminum oxide and other metallic oxides that does not explode, but rather creates short bursts of incredible heat that can cut through steel like butter. In addition to the astonishing temperature a thermite reaction creates, it is also known for its telltale whitish-orange glow; a glow that is blindingly bright [Fig. 20]. Given that aluminum, barium, strontium, manganese, gallium, titanium, cadmium, iron, and other toxic incendiary elements have been found in post-spray rainwater and soil tests, it is not a stretch to presume that these “wild fires” are, essentially, enormous thermite reactions.

But why would they destroy huge tracts of land on purpose, killing thousands of people and animals in the process? For the sake of brevity, I won't elaborate too much, but let's just say it has everything to do with UN Agenda 21/2030 and the creation of “smart cities” within “mega-regions.” “Sustainable development” is the buzz term but, I can assure you, this agenda has nothing to do with protecting people or the environment.

- Depopulation/Illness

Many prominent proponents and funders of geoengineering – such as Bill Gates and Ted Turner – are also strong proponents of a large reduction in the world’s human population. In response to a www.wearechange.org reporter asking him what his goals were for world population, Turner stated, “I think two billion is about right.”

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=DMgamzziQMM>

It’s no coincidence that the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation focuses so enthusiastically on world-wide vaccinations – vaccinations proven to contain high levels of aluminum, mercury, formaldehyde, and even human/monkey tissue – under the guise of preventing disease. The actual effect, however, may be to weaken immune systems and cause other irreparable damage such as neurological disorders (disorders that make pharmaceutical corporations $billions).

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QHVmR83XABY>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=B59CBW6cc3o>

<https://www.davidicke.com/article/560943/interview-retired-vaccine-researcher>

Cancer and severe neurological disorders are proven outcomes of the prolonged intake of heavy metals, and nanoparticles accomplish this in spades because of their incredibly small size. The human body is able to flush out many of the toxins that exist in our world today, but nanosized metals bypass the blood/brain barrier and accumulate in the brain like a plaque (and in our lungs and other organs). See Mark Whiteside, MD, and J Marvin Herndon’s relevant paper here:

<http://bp.bookpi.org/index.php/bpi/catalog/download/22/34/118-1?inline=1>

When certain chemicals interact in the body (aluminum and fluoride, for example) they cause synergistic toxicity, meaning that exposure to the two chemicals at the same time results in health effects exponentially greater than the effects of the individual chemicals themselves. Russell Blaylock, MD, is a leading researcher on this topic and an outspoken opponent of clandestine geoengineering operations:

<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5909100/>

<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/25667058>

Did you know that Alzheimer's, dementia, autism [Fig. 21], and other neurodegenerative diseases have increased rapidly in recent years? If so, have you stopped to consider why? The same rapid increase applies to chronic respiratory diseases (despite smoking levels being at historic lows and pollution regulations being at historically high levels of strictness). Once again, Whiteside and Herndon have documented these respiratory disease effects:

<http://www.journaljamr.com/index.php/JAMMR/article/view/11967/21805>

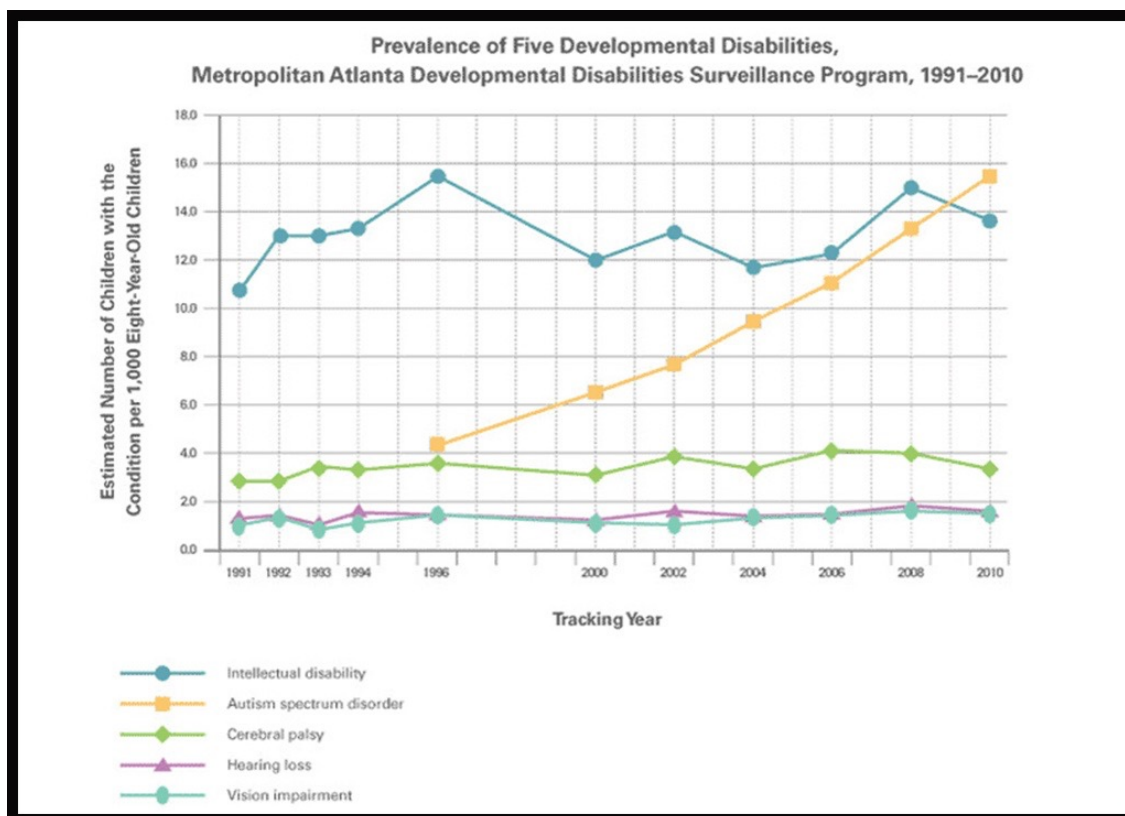

Figure 21. Childhood Autism in Atlanta (and everywhere else in the US) has risen steeply since aerosol spray operations began.

Though the EPA and other government agencies will point to the fact that aluminum is a ubiquitous element in the Earth's crust, what they won't tell you is that aluminum does not exist in free form in the environment. It's no coincidence that Dr. Alois Alzheimer diagnosed the first case of his namesake disease in 1901, a little more than a decade after aluminum reproduction began on a large scale. Curiously, the Alzheimer's Association's board of directors is made up, largely, of people with major financial interests in the production of aluminum.

Leonard A. Cole's book Clouds of Secrecy is an in-depth documentation of numerous open-air "biological tests" done on unsuspecting populations by the US military after World War II. With dozens of biological labs across the country (and many more in the rest of the world) – and the established precedent of open-air "experimentation" – it would be foolish to assume that aerosol spraying today is limited only to heavy metals and nanobots. Take, for instance, the agent that causes Morgellons, a mysterious disease researched by Clifford Carnicom who believes the causative agent is aerially sprayed as part of an ongoing assault on our immune systems.

Prominent geoengineer Ken Caldeira [Fig. 22] substantiates Cole, Carnicom, and Thomas' research by admitting to having worked for the US military on ways to seed clouds with pathogens in order to infect the populations below. Caldeira said, "Now, you could imagine putting pathogens in a cloud, let the cloud go over somewhere and...you could be pretty sure that, in a few days, that cloud would rain out." To hear more of his statement:

- Resource Control and Fabricated Scarcity

Given that most of the toxic spraying has been seen and reported in the skies of NATO member countries, it's no surprise that they and the UN have their fingerprints all over European and North American weather modification operations. We could go further up the food chain to groups like the Council of 300, but that's a discussion for a later paper. The immediate issue at hand is that Iraq, Libya, Syria, Iran, Venezuela, Haiti, many African countries, and yes, the United States of America, have been subjected to massively destabilizing "natural" disasters such as earthquakes, floods, and prolonged droughts that have left these countries weakened and open to corporate and military theft of natural resources like oil, water, and strategic minerals.

Climate engineering is the military-industrial-intelligence-university complex's crown jewel.

To once again paraphrase Wigington, climate engineers control the hydrological cycle top-to-bottom. They decide not only where it will rain and where it won't, but how toxic that rain will be. Farmers in Australia and India are committing suicide in droves because of the never-ending drought's destruction of their cattle and crops. Monsanto (now Bayer), along with the USDA (United States Department of Agriculture), has developed genetically modified aluminum-and-drought-resistant seeds for widespread use on corporate farms, presumably gaining protection against the effects of clandestine geoengineering. US farmers in the Midwest recently experienced unprecedented levels of crop destruction due to massive flooding. As is the case with the other related agendas, attaching the word "genocide" does not seem hyperbolic.

<https://www.c-span.org/video/?c4681211/user-clip-us-weather-weapons>

http://allnewspipeline.com/Food_Shortages_Weaponized_Weather.php

The spraying assault has led to a catastrophic die-off of plants and animals around the world, not the least of which has been coniferous trees (a huge source of oxygen on this planet). This particular decline has often officially been blamed on "bark beetle infestation." Like most propaganda, this is a half-truth. The infestations are entirely made possible by the shutting down of the trees' root systems and natural defenses in response to the geoengineered heavy metal poisoning.

Speaking of oxygen, the largest producers of oxygen on this planet (plankton) have been dying off as well. Scientists came up with a practice called ocean iron fertilization

(a far less talked-about form of geoengineering with equally devastating consequences) that involves the dumping of huge amounts of iron into the ocean from boats to grow algae that, in turn, provides food for plankton. Wikipedia tells us, “This form of fertilization produces the world’s largest marine habitats,” but that is a blatant lie. The process actually creates enormous anoxic “dead zones” known as Canfield Ocean, places in which no large marine animals can survive.

The assault on our bodies, our environment, and our biosphere is truly coming from every direction, and the damage is epic. We’re told that we must reduce greenhouse gas emissions to slow down this “new normal” of climate change. This is not climate change. This is planetary terrorism.

In Summary:

Although the subject of geoengineering likely seems far-fetched or perhaps absurd to you, there is solid evidence to back up its existence. I understand it requires a giant leap for decent, empathetic people to master their cognitive dissonance and to accept that their (shadow) government – along with academia, mainstream media, the CIA (mainstream media’s master), military contractors, think tanks like CFR and RAND, and many more players – would undertake such an unbelievably callous and environmentally devastating endeavor; ultimately, a genocidal endeavor. It requires the same sort of courageous leap to accept that an unimaginably extensive propaganda campaign – a conspiracy of power elites – has taken shape over many decades, orchestrated by world bankers, and those who control the world bankers and their intelligence agencies and political proxies. Only such a power nexus could carry out what is undoubtedly the biggest scientific “experiment” ever launched, one of which there is likely no turning back.

In an April 1961 speech to the ANPA (American Newspaper Publishers Association), John F. Kennedy [Fig. 23] said:

“The very word secrecy is repugnant in a free and open society. And we are, as a people, inherently and historically, opposed to secret societies, to secret oaths, and to secret proceedings. We decided long ago that the dangers of excessive and unwarranted concealment of pertinent facts far outweighed the dangers which are cited to justify it...And there is very grave danger that an announced need for increased security will be seized upon by those anxious to expand its meaning to the very limits of official censorship and concealment...Our way of life is under attack...The survival of our friends is in danger, and yet no war has been declared, no borders have been crossed by marching troops, no missiles have been fired...If you are awaiting a finding of clear and present danger, then I can only say that the danger has never been more clear, and its presence has never been more imminent."

To read a full transcript of the speech, visit www.jfklibrary.org and search for "The President and the Press: Address Before the American Newspaper Publishers Association, April 27, 1961."

On page 405 of his Memoirs, published in 2002, David Rockefeller [Fig. 24] said:

"Some even believe we are part of a secret cabal working against the best interests of the United States, characterizing my family and me as internationalists and of conspiring with others around the world to build a more integrated global political and economic structure; one world, if you will. If that's the charge, I stand guilty, and I am proud of it."

Many people I've spoken to about these issues are unwilling to believe that human beings – be they in government, banking, the military, or wherever – are clever enough to carry out such gigantic crimes undetected. To that I say not only that they are clever enough, but that they have been detected. It's just that the power structure has managed to keep most of the population asleep, allowing them to continue their criminal activities unimpeded. "Human beings aren't this evil," I've been told. On the whole, I agree, but guess what: it's amazing what a decent paycheck and pension can do to a person's moral compass. And when money doesn't cut it, blackmail tends to do the trick.

"But why would they do this to themselves?" I've heard it asked. I assure you we are not dealing with morally sane or empathetic people here. We're also not dealing with people who have the same "real-world" restrictions most of us have on a day-to-day basis of gaining a livelihood. Undisclosed-to-the-public special (and expensive) medications and treatments, access to primary water, and airtight underground bunkers are some of the countless advantages the "elite" have to shield themselves from the toxic fallout they've callously wrought upon planet Earth.

Those in power could not do what they do if they were confronted by an informed and motivated public. Unfortunately, the decades-long disinformation war has been effective enough that most people are not informed of their government's high crimes and misdemeanors and, therefore, they are not motivated to stop the insanity. In addition, the constant bombardment of heavy metals, EMF (electro-magnetic frequencies), and fluoridated water on our neurological systems makes it much more difficult to think clearly. Sadly, most people who are otherwise informed simply cannot and will not allow themselves to face such disturbing realities. Disheartening as this is, I understand.

Therefore, I call on all who are awake or in the process of awakening, all who are informed and willing to stare the ugly truth in the face, and all who have a shred of empathy inside them (I believe the latter to be a vast majority of human beings on planet Earth) to come together and say, with a resoundingly unified voice, "No more. We do not consent to the intentional poisoning of our children. We do not consent to the soulless destruction of our magnificent biosphere and ecosystem. We do not consent to a small group of psychopaths 'playing God' with the weather and choosing who lives and who dies."

We do not consent.

I'd like to offer sincere gratitude to those whose tireless research and courage has given these issues a chance to see the light of day (some at the expense of their lives or livelihoods). To John Knox, Elana Freeland, Clifford Carnicom, Ted Gunderson, Peter Kirby, Michael J. Murphy, William Thomas, Jeane Manning, Nick Begich, Deborah Tavares, Mike Morales, Kristen Meghan, Jim Lee, Patrick Roddie, J Marvin Herndon, Mark Whiteside, Ian Baldwin, Rob Williams, John Graf, Dane Wigington, and many more...I thank you from the bottom of my heart.
